Information sur le projet

Titre: Steps ahead – Professionnalisation de coaches juniors dans les domaines du spectacle vivant et des medias

Code Projet: DE/12/LLP-LdV/TOI/147517

Année: 2012

Type de Projet: Projets de transfert d'innovation

Statut: Clôturé

Pays: DE-Allemagne

Accroche marketing: Il existe une demande croissante de jeunes coaches dans le monde du spectacle vivant et des medias, auprès des écoles et instituts de jeunesse du Nord-Ouest de l'Europe. Il y a aussi de plus en plus de jeunes artistes citadins du spectacle vivant et des medias, issus des quartiers de grande diversité culturelle, nombre d'entre eux en situation financière précaire et non suffisamment liés au marché du travail.

Dans le projet précédent «ROOTS & ROUTES Academy», nous avons élaboré un programme de formation pour coaches juniors, offrant aux jeunes artistes une formation de base. «Steps ahead» a transferé ce concept à de nouveaux pays et contextes, en l'ayant adapté à la situation en Grèce et en Italie, et, en accord avec les besoins des jeunes coaches, étendu le programme vers une coopération plus étroite avec le marché du travail, incluant des compétences entrepreneuriales plus larges et des «zones de test» pour les jeunes coaches, leur offrant de réelles expériences professionnelles.

Résumé: "Steps ahead" aimed to develop concepts for the initial and advanced non-formal vocational education of young artists to become coaches in performing art and media. The project transferred a curriculum developed in The Netherlands and Germany to Italy, Greece and Hungary; methods for connecting young artists to the labour market from Italy and Greece to the other partners ; and a concept for an employment guidance network from the Netherlands to all other partners.

After having worked with young musicians, dancers and film makers in non-formal settings for some years, jfc (Cologne) and Stichting ROOTS & ROUTES (Rotterdam) found a growing demand for young coaches in performing arts and media work in all-day school and youth work contexts. Participants from our projects were increasingly hired for those jobs; quite some couldn't cope with the requirements. So we started the project "The ROOTS & ROUTES Academy" developing and practically testing a curriculum for Junior Coaches; with a focus on the pedagogical aspects of being a coach. The project was successful, yet still the evaluation showed that the entrepreneurship aspects were underexposed in our original curriculum; and that the Junior Coaches needed follow-up training modules, chances to put their skills to the test in real-life settings and additional support to establish stronger links to the labour market.

Thus, aims of "Steps ahead" included:
• to create and transfer an updated curriculum for the professionalization of young music, dance and media coaches
• to develop Advanced Training Seminars for Junior Coaches covering entrepreneurial, technical and cross-sectoral skills
• to develop "Testing Zones" as monitored settings where young coaches can put their coaching skills and methods to the test
• to foster connections of young urban artists and media makers to the labour market
• to foster the mobility of the project participants

Description: "Steps ahead" has started with a kick-off meeting connecting all partners and it has gained momentum with a qualitative research investigating formal and non-formal methods used for the training of junior coaches. Three international seminars with both project managers and trainers (who are involved in the education of junior coaches) from all partner countries and national roundtables have built a reflective framework for this project, allowing exchange of good practice as well as evaluation and further development of the concrete educational activities in the project.

Having had educated Junior Coaches in the previous project “The ROOTS & ROUTES Academy” already, the Dutch and German partners involved them in the development of further training modules, examining their needs and ideas as well as the requirements of the labour market; those modules have then been carried out nationally in the first project year, with 6+ participants and a total of 12+ seminar days per country.

Additionally, practical modules (“Testing Zones”) have been developed and carried out, where 6+ Junior Coaches per module could put their skills to the test, worked with young people in educational settings, monitored partly by trainers, partly via peer monitoring. Meanwhile the Hungarian, Italian and Greek partners have run their first academies for Junior Coaches (12+ seminar days, 9+ participants per country), adapting the “ROOTS & ROUTES Academy” Curriculum to their national situation.

In the second project year, the Curriculum for the Junior Coach Academies was jointly revised based on the experiences from the further trainings in Germany and the Netherlands and the 2013 Academies in Greece, Italy and Hungary. All partners ran national Junior Coach Academies in 2014 based on the updated curriculum. Plus, the further training modules were pushed to an international level: Greece, Hungary and Italy organised short international further training seminars for Junior Coaches who had successfully completed the Academy, inviting 2 participants per partner country each. Germany, the Netherlands and Italy organised international Testing Zones, inviting 1 participant per partner country each.

Through both project years, all partners jointly worked on conceptual ideas for an employment guidance network (“Junior Coach Agency”) based on the “ROOTS & ROUTES Impresariaat” (www.rnragency.eu) developed by the Dutch partners. They also worked on sustainable implementations of the ROOTS & ROUTES Peer Coach Curriculum in their countries.

The project ended with a European conference on September 26th, 2014 in Rotterdam/Netherlands, involving all project partners and selected stakeholders from the creative industries. The project results created by the consortium, especially the ROOTS & ROUTES Peer Coach Curriculum, were made available online free of charge and disseminated by the partners. The consortium members and the wider framework of the international ROOTS & ROUTES network will continue cooperating in new projects, as the recently started project “Routes to Employment” (ERASMUS+).

Titre:	ROOTS & ROUTES Steps Ahead Research Report
Type de Produit:	Autres
Texte marketing:	Business skills are needed to successfully make a living, attract investors and potentially expand their business. Many new artists lack the skills needed to develop a business proposal to a stage where it is ready to attract external investors'. R&R talents need to gain awareness of the transferability of their skills if they have an interest in business entrepreneurship. The EC Green Paper on the potential of CCIs therefore stresses the need to better match the skills needs of CCIs by allowing for continuous training initiatives as well promoting the mobility of artists. Life Long Learning mechanisms can be provided for such continuous learning schemes and could be deployed on demand by the entrepreneur.

Produit 'ROOTS & ROUTES Peer Coach Curriculum'

Titre: ROOTS & ROUTES Peer Coach Curriculum

Type de Produit: Programme/curriculum

Texte marketing: To be a young artist in present times is no small feat. It offers both tremendous challenges and great opportunities. Increasing mobility and a rapidly changing society offer chances for artistic development as well as challenges: Financial stability is not a given in the artistic work field.

That said, the rewards from coaching a new generation of young artists are great. ROOTS & ROUTES partners across Europe have met with young artists in the field of performing arts and media who wanted to learn how to coach others in their field. They feel that they have something to offer, as well as to gain: To offer they have the knowledge and skills that they have acquired so far. To gain they have an (additional) means of gaining financial independence with what they know and do best: practicing their art, and passing it on to others.

With this curriculum we want to equip young artists with some of the tools they will certainly use during the journey up ahead.

Description: The ROOTS & ROUTES Peer Coach Curriculum has three main parts:

Part I offers a basic introduction into the peer coaching approach and discusses requirements for running a peer coach training/ academy.

Part II outlines the competencies required by peer coaches in performing arts and media. Modules focusing on these competencies are described, with concrete methods, requirements and recommendations. This is structured by four fields of competency:
1. Artistic and media competencies for coaches
2. Pedagogical/ teaching/ coaching competencies
3. Entrepreneurial competencies
4. Reflective, cross-sectoral and lifelong learning competencies

Cible: Training managers / educational programmers and trainers / senior coaches. Educational and youth work policy makers.

Résultat: PDF file, 100 pages, English language.

Domaine d'application: Training of junior coaches / peer coaches in the field of performing arts and media.

Final Conference “Transnational entrepreneurship and young artists”

Date	26.09.2014
Description	80+ participants from 8 EU member states joined the international ROOTS & ROUTES conference on September 26th, 2014. The presentations and discussions all concluded that more entrepreneurial support is needed for young artists. In their studies as well as in the first stage of their professionals careers. Mentors, management support and introduction to professional networks were essential points addressed. It was concluded that the international ROOTS & ROUTES will have to concentrate on these points more in the future and where possible to establish strategic alliances with other organizations.

International Testing Zone Germany 2014

Date	15.08.2014
Description	The Testing Zone “ROOTS & ROUTES Step 1” ran at the youth center Luckys Haus. Luckys Haus is located at Bilderstöckchen, a multicultural neighbourhood in the North-Western part of Cologne. It’s a quite big house with a well-equipped music recording studio, a arts workshop that can be used as media room plus a gym room and a disco room with mirrors both suitable for dance. At the ROOTS & ROUTES Step 1 workshop week, participants mainly worked in workshops split by disciplines. Musicians created and recorded songs, dancers rehearsed and created choreographies, media makers made documentaries of the other workshop and a music video. The international junior coaches worked in teams with German coaches. Janna Hadler was the main project manager and contact person for the international participants, she also monitored the coaching activities and chaired the daily feedback sessions.
Cible	Junior Coaches from the five “Steps Ahead” partner countries. Good communicators (broken English + bodylanguage), able to work with diverse groups of young people. Musicians, dancers and media makers preferred. Comic/Graffiti artists also possible.

Description	Workshops took place in Artstudio Hoogvliet. Hoogvliet is a suburb of Rotterdam, 20 min from the centre. The Artstudio is a new complex, with several music studios, dance and multifunctional rooms and a large room for performances. Hoogvliet has a lot of (talented) youth but there are not that many activities for them. 6 different workshops were run by a total of 12 Junior Coaches. Their target group were urban young people from 10 to 22 years. On the last full day (July 25th) there was a public final presentation.

International Testing Zone Italy 2014

Date 05.07.2014

Description The international Testing Zone was carried out in the frame of Inequilibrio, a well known international festival of contemporary performing arts organised by Armunia in a village close to Livorno, on the west coast of Tuscany. In another nearby village, Cecina, the Artimbanco School of Theatre is running since some years the project Officine Dioniso, under the guidance, among others, of Caterina Poggesi and Cesare Torricelli: within a well-established educational programme in the field of performing arts, a group of about 20 youngsters aged 14-20 is now continuing this experience in a horizontal, almost independent peer education approach.

The international Junior Coaches tested their coaching skills in this situation, monitored by the senior facilitators.

Activities included:
• a practical, physical part also in small groups
• a constant platform for discussion, in relation to the performances attended during the Festival
• the design of the final site-specific performance

Every day had 8 working hours, including:
• a specific warming up, guided each time by a different Junior Coach but addressed to the whole group
• an in-depth analysis in small groups, according to the participants' personal disposition
• a final plenary dedicated to harmonise the work and design the performance.

The multidisciplinary approach of the context and of the group provided an optimal frame for evaluating fieldwork in different cultural settings. The group had the possibility to work in a concrete situation, in relation to both the coaching and the artistic process, and to realise the final event in terms of concept, organisation, presentation.

Cible Junior Coaches from the five "Steps Ahead" partner countries. Experienced and/or interested in cross-disciplinary art practice and site-specific work; no need for technical equipment.

Further Training Seminar Hungary 2014

Date	29.05.2014
Description	The Hungarian further training seminar aims three major areas: advanced group facilitation, self-management and project management. Group facilitation: our aim is from one hand to provide workshops that help to improve those skills are necessary for a deeper understanding and using of groups dynamics, from other hand is teaching advanced group facilitation techniques especially focused on the debriefing/processing part of an artistic session. We also would like to transfers coaching methods that were successfully used in projects were implemented in public spaces involving public as well. Project management: we will focus on developing competencies necessary to successfully think and work in the 'plan-implement-evaluate' basic project management framework. We will introduce various tools can be used in the process of managing a project. Self-management: as for self-management we are going to focus on how to use the online media, new media as a tool for self-management. In the further training, participants will be introduced to a wide range of online tools and surfaces that can be used for different aims of self-representation, selfmarketing. Methodology of the training: the sessions will follow an experiential based training method so participants will learn through experiences especially in group facilitation and project management. Selfmanagement through online tools will include lectures and group discussions.

Date	10.03.2014
Description	The training implementation at the Greek Junior Coach Academy 2014 was based on experiential methodology (metacognitive pedagogical approach). Emphasis was placed on knowledge, skills and attitudes already held by the participants and the educational process was directly related to their lived experiences and interpretation's competences. The various thematic issues (Communication, Organisational Leadership, Entrepreneurship, Group Dynamics, etc) were structured as an opportunity for interactive dialogue, activation and learning by doing. For the artistic sessions, the participants were invited to take initiatives (i.e. warming up games were coordinated by the 1st Academy Peer Coaches and the participants), to improvise and experiment with their artistic skills. In order to be developed in several dimensions of art and creativity by doing, they had to visualize, plan, create and perform several short music-theatre plays till the end of the training.

Description From March 8 to 16, 2014, at Exfila connessioni metropolitane of Florence in collaboration with Arci Firenze, the second intensive academy of the Steps Ahead project involved ten young artists active in dance, theatre, music, visual arts and media, with vocation to non-formal educational practices.

The academy, under the artistic and educational coordination of Pietro Gaglianò and Caterina Poggesi, was structured in form of semi-residency for 9 consecutive days, from 10 am to 9 pm: a total of 80 hours of activities with Italian and foreign coaches and facilitators, including master classes, technical seminars, evaluation and question time, and a “lounge time” for mutual confrontation and free activities scheduled every day at 7 pm. This “lounge zone” was especially aimed at enhancing a better organization of the time dedicated to the “drafts”, the participants’ individual projects, and at increasing opportunities for dialogue, individual advice, in-depth analysis.

One afternoon, the participants also had the opportunity to come in touch with a concrete case of successful peer coaching activity, by visiting the exhibition realized at SRISA Santa Reparata International School of Arts by a group of Junior Coaches in the framework of the project http://www.u-care.org.

The entire pathway was intended to share the role of the coach as an educator in terms of responsibility, professional ethics and method, and at the same time as an artist in terms of language, design and attitude. Practical experiences were provided, aimed at awakening a certain predisposition to build one’s own autonomous professional path, opening up mental windows, rather than giving functional recipes or ready-made tools, with a view to facilitating processes, to the relationship between process and outcome, community and individual, art and learning, formats and contents.

Date	14.02.2014
Description	The Steps Ahead Junior Coach Academy Hungary 2014 contained training sessions, courses for young dancers, media – workers, musicians and artists, in order for them to become professional workshop leaders. The main emphasis was to deepen self awareness through teaching, and to gain self-conscious knowledge. Furthermore, the acquisition of business, marketing and leadership skills were also essential parts of this course, these expertises helped our participants to be able to manage themselves in the working world in the best possible way. The aim of the course was to allow obtaining the knowledge and skill development which are necessary to lead coaching/workshop sessions. The training occasions are approaching the subject from a partly pedagogical, psychological, and on the other hand artistical (art-coaching) aspect. During the programme, the participants got the chance to do practical work where they could try themselves. They were also enabled to process the practical experiences together during these training sessions, giving each other feedback and receiving guidance and instructions from the trainers.
