Résumé: Project was implemented in partnership with The IBD Partnership from United Kingdom to strengthen the capacity or better to say gaining knowledge, skills and abilities for CES employees RO Osijek and through study visits and language training. CES staff RO Osijek (5 employees) visited the institutions engaged in vocational guidance, in counselling of unemployed about career choice, in advising about learning needs and opportunities and mobility on the labour market. These were: public employment service, organisations dealing with employment and vocational guidance as well as representatives of civil society and schools. There was a special need for getting to know how to work with children and students especially in the field of career choices, career counselling and informing about educational opportunities. As Croatia has a growing number of unemployed due to the economic crisis, it was necessary to provide answers to the structural changes that need to be done to start the economy. Also there is a need for better connection between private companies and educational sectors and a need for language training of counsellors from CES. CES staff RO Osijek, especially employment counsellors and career guidance counsellors became familiar with the employment system in another one of the EU countries and exchanged experiences with their colleagues. These experiences will lead to new ideas and improvement of everyday work.
