Information sur le projet

Titre: L´Europe Mobilité pour tous

Code Projet: 2011-1-SE1-LEO05-8369

Année: 2011

Type de Projet: Projets de transfert d'innovation

Statut: Accordé

Pays: SE-Suède

Accroche marketing: Voyager et travailler à l'étranger peut vous donner une toute nouvelle perspective de la vie. Á travers de ce projet, nous souhaitons qu'encore plus le nombre de jeunes défavorisés puissent aller à l'étranger pour une expérience des pratiques du travail. Ce groupe cible est sous-représentée dans les schémas de mobilité.

Résumé: Un projet avec les objectifs suivants:
augmenter la quantité de jeunes défavorisés à l'étranger pour des pratiques de travail;
établir des réseaux axés sur le soutien de la mobilité;
créer un modèle adapté pour le groupe cible pour la préparation, la mise en œuvre et l'évaluation des pratiques de travail à l'étranger.

Description: Since the late 1980ies, the European Commission has grant-aided transnational mobility for young people in initial vocational education and training (IVET) – initially with the Petra programme and later through the Leonardo da Vinci and the Lifelong Learning Programme. Furthermore the Youth in Action Programme is an important instrument by the European Commission to support transnational mobility in the context of non-formal learning.
Despite these efforts, however, young people with fewer opportunities (with a low qualification level, who are unemployed or who have a low income job) are still absolutely underrepresented in these mobility programmes and in measures promoting stays abroad for learning and qualifying purposes. Hence, many political recommendations and initiatives, like the Green Paper: Promoting the Learning Mobility of Young People (2009), the 2010 launched EU Flagship Initiative 'Youth on the move', as well as the focus and the aims of the current EU programmes, say that it is of particular interest to promote the disadvantaged target groups. Research show that in the case of young people with fewer opportunities staying abroad contributes extraordinarily to broaden their social skills and it has a great impact on improving their employability and integration in the labour market. But the access to and the conditions for transnational mobility must be modified and better adjusted to this target group. If the general condition and supporting instruments, such as assistance, training, recognition etc. are tailored for the target group, the number and the quality of mobility might increase. Hence, the focus of EuropeMobility for all is rather on mobility opportunities for young people with fewer opportunities and how to get professionals working in the VET system (teachers, trainers etc.) and young people informed, motivated and accompanied in the context of transnational mobility. The project will lead to give unemployed young adults opportunities to expand their job-related experiences and to acquire professional skills in other EU countries with the aim to be integrated in the labour market.
In order to reach young people with fewer opportunities the project partners have developed an information package for practitioners working with young people and young people themselves to promote learning mobility. Further so called mobility fairs have been/ will be organised in order to bring together the target institutions, such as schools, educational and training institutions to promote mobility and to raise awareness on benefits, funding opportunities and good practices.
