Marketing Text: Freiwilligkeit - Ein Weg zum Beruf (Volwem) war ein Projekt von acht Partnern, die als Träger- und Förderstrukturen des freiwilligen Engagements in der Slowakei, Großbritannien und Tschechien aktiv sind. Wichtigstes Projektziel von Volwem war es, Systeme und Mechanismen der Arbeit mit nicht-erwerbstätigen Freiwilligen aus Großbritannien und Tschechien in die Slowakei zu transferieren, um den Freiwilligen die Anerkennung ihrer in der Freiwilligentätigkeit erworbenen Kompetenzen auf dem Arbeitsmarkt zu ermöglichen.

Zusammenfassung: Volunteering is in EU countries with a longer history and tradition of volunteering generally recognized not only as a leisure time activity, but also a way to achieve new skills and competencies that are recognized by employers. In Slovakia, the situation has been quite different - there was no system for recognition and validation of non-formal education by colleges or universities (as in UK or other countries) because we have been lacking the legal framework for it and there has been a low recognition of benefits of volunteering by employers in Slovakia. Also the volunteer centres (VC) were lacking the skills and systems necessary for the work with unemployed volunteers. These were the reasons for the project implementation. Main objectives were:

1. To provide especially unemployed volunteers with a tool (V – skills) they can use for understanding and using the competencies they gained through volunteering at the labour market and in such a way to improve their position and competitiveness when applying for a job.
2. To provide unemployed volunteers, professionals at labour offices and volunteer centres with methods (project Welcome from CZ) which enable them to involve unemployed people in volunteering. To help unemployed people to get a job and make them active through volunteering.
3. To make employers aware about the competencies gained through volunteering and the tool (V-skills) that can prove the existence of these skills and competencies and to make them recognize these skills in the process of the recruitment.

4. To provide a results study of this project for institution of formal learning as well as for employers, public institutions as labour offices and Ministry of Work. Provide a methodology for labour offices on how to support and motivate unemployed people for volunteering. The project was implemented by the consortium formed by the University of Matej Bel in Banska Bystrica, the Centre of Volunteering in Banska Bystrica and three other VCs in Presov, Kosice, and Nitra. The project will be coordinated by the Platform of Volunteer Centres and Organizations - umbrella organization focused on development of volunteering in Slovakia.

The outcomes of the project included: transfer of the system of V-Skills from Scotland, its adaptation to Slovak conditions - we have created a tool for volunteers to verify the skills they gained through volunteering and to make them recognized in an objective process which is available through web and managed by volunteers themselves; transfer and adaptation of method focused on labour offices and volunteer centres which have made volunteer centres able to work more efficiently with unemployed people and labour offices aware of benefits of volunteering for unemployed people and ready to motivate them for such activity. Volunteer centres have cooperated with employers in their regions in order to recognise benefits of volunteering for capacity building and future employment.

Beschreibung: The project was lead by consortium of 8 partners volunteer development and volunteer service organisations in Slovakia, Czech republic and United Kingdom. The project brought two systems of work with unemployed volunteers to Slovakia that are mutually complementing each other. The online tool for volunteers - V-Skills for

Projektinformation

Employment is focused on the recognition of skills and competencies gained through volunteering - the evidence confirming the existence of these skills and competencies is collected by a volunteer himself with the support of a volunteer centre or volunteer involving organization and consequently certified by a special committee based on a college. The V-skills (UK) were complemented by the system of work called "Welcome!" (Czech republic) focused on volunteer centres, volunteer involving organizations, labour offices and unemployed (or job-seekers) people in order to create conditions supporting the involvement of unemployed people into volunteering and to develop the awareness related to the usefulness/transferability of skills gained through volunteering into the world of work. The added value lies in the combination of these two products. As the V-skills lacks (or better to say does not emphasize) the work with labour offices the methodics "Welcome!" does not work with recognition and transferability of skills. By the results of the project partners we have made employers, unemployed volunteers and formal educational organisations aware about the competencies gained through volunteering. At the end of the project partners have provided a results study of this project for institutions of formal learning as well as for employers, public institutions as labour offices and Ministry of Work in Slovakia.

The projects activities were as follows:

- We have provided volunteers with a online tool to help them enhance their prospects in seeking employment/a job by capturing their learning through their volunteer activities.
- We have provided professionals at labour offices and volunteer centres with a method which enables them to involve unemployed people in volunteering.
- We have made employers aware about the competencies gained through volunteering and made them recognize these skills in the process of the recruitment.
- We have provided a results study of this project for institutions of formal learning as well as for employers, public institutions as labour offices and Ministry of Work.

- Produktinformation: The product "V-skills for Employment" -" D-zrunosti pre zamestnanie" is based on the assessment of evidence generated from volunteering experience with the support of online resource centre and a volunteer centre or a volunteer involving organization. This experience (evidence of skills and competencies) is than presented to a certification committee at Matej Bel University in Slovakia which awards (or does not award) a certificate to a volunteer which is based on the recognition of experience gained through volunteering.

Projektinformation

"Welcome!"- "Skuste to inak" methodics is focused on the approaches and cooperation of volunteer centres and volunteer involving organizations with labour offices, and at the same time will help the volunteer centres and volunteer involving organisations to learn how to work with unemployed volunteers more effectively. The work with this target group is very specific, it needs more intensive facilitation/coordination, training and supervision. In order to involve unemployed people into volunteering, volunteer centres need to cooperate with NGOs, which will involve these volunteers into their activities, more closely and efficiently.

Produkt 'training for volunteer centres and volunteer involving organizations on how to work with unemployed volunteers'

Titel: training for volunteer centres and volunteer involving organizations on how to work with unemployed volunteers

Produkttyp: Lehrmaterial

Marketing Text: Within the project we have developed a training for volunteer coordinators on how to work with unemployed volunteers. The training was accredited and there was a material prepared for the trainees.

The training was based on the practical experience of volunteer coordinators who were involved into the VOLWEM project and was tested by participants of the training that was held in Banska Bystrica in May and Košice in June 2014.

Beschreibung: It is a teaching material used within the training for volunteer centres and volunteer involving organizations on how to work with unemployed volunteers. The volunteer management of unemployed volunteers can be slightly different than in the case of "ordinary" volunteers. Thanks to the training, volunteer centers and volunteer involving organizations can get ready for the engagement of unemployed volunteers. The goal of the course is to improve competences of volunteer coordinators in the area of volunteer management of unemployed volunteers. In such a way this product directly contributes to the aims of the project and helps organizations to work with unemployed volunteers.

Zielgruppe: volunteer coordinators - who are already working with (or interested in working with) unemployed volunteers in the area of public administration, NGOs, church-related organizations which went through the basic three-day accredited training in volunteer management or have at least three year experience in volunteer management

Resultat: 40-page document that is used by trainees during the training

Produkt 'Report from the Survey of Employers'

Titel: Report from the Survey of Employers

Produkttyp: andere

Marketing Text: Outcomes of the survey among employers implemented within the project run (165 respondents, online survey)

Beschreibung: In order to bring an effective system of validation of non-formal learning within volunteering, it is not enough to cooperate with volunteer centers and organizations, unemployed volunteers, a university and labor offices. Probably the most crucial part of the process is the participation of the employers. Without their participation, the whole validation process won't be successful. One of the steps in how to involve them was the implementation of the survey among employees on how they perceive the volunteering experience of job applicants. This survey was done by the Platform and the UMB - it started in August 2013 and ended in January 2014 and there were 165 representatives of employers and HR managers responding to this survey. The results were summed up in the electronic document.

Zielgruppe: volunteer centers, volunteer involving organizations, unemployed or job-seeking volunteers, employers, NGOs
