The project uses the VPL (Validation of Prior Learning) model to draw out and validate the previously acquired skills of persons during their formative and professional life. The project is structured into three stages with three different sequential paths, having a selective access.

The first stage, called "Paths of knowledge", is oriented towards 200 people in four regions. The Lazio region In this area 100 over 40-year-old jobless individuals take part at the first stage of the project. In the second stage, called "Paths of vocational education and training", the over 40 become 50.

In the third stage, called " Paths of experimentation "on the job", 25 stood out for involvement and function propensity will be directly involved in the hotels (four in Rome and one in Fiumicino) for four months, to observe, value and certify the acquired skills during their professional and formative life. The project gives to the participants the opportunity to become aware of their potential, supporting them for new jobs research. The hosting firms test the VPL model presented by MAIEUTA and, at the same time, observe the potential of over 40 on the job and also of the model.
