ARIADNE, the managerial guidance in Social Economy based on intrinsic skills, competences and values: commitment, behaviour and motivation

OPEN UNIVERSITY Exploitation Plan:

What has been the impact of the project on education systems for each partner?

Trainers in focus groups said they found the approach useful, and would use it, particularly the KSC framework.

Which institutions / organizations (other than partners) expressed a strong interest in the use of the results?

Northampton University, Sheffield Hallam University, and some trainers.

How many people / target group will benefit from the project results during the year following the end of the project in each partner country? explain how you calculate / estimate this figure.

Very difficult to assess. Dissemination was received positively, but action depends on factors not under control of project partner.

Please describe how the partners (if they want) will continue the project after the end of the ARIADNE grant. If, yes, what resources do you intend to use for their sustainability?

Roger Spear is producing a special issue of the journal of social enterprise which will include a paper on the KSC approach.

Detail what the outcome will be marketed and any other result will free law.
